Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God

Jonathan Edwards · July 8, 1741 (Enfield, Connecticut)

Source: Jonathan Edwards, "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God," sermon, 1741

Preached at the height of the First Great Awakening, Edwards's sermon used vivid, terrifying imagery to drive listeners toward personal conversion. The Awakening's emotional, revivalist style swept the colonies, challenged established churches, and created a shared religious experience that crossed colonial lines — an early step toward a common colonial identity.

Key Passages

The spider over the fire

> "The God that holds you over the pit of hell, much as one holds a spider or some loathsome insect over the fire, abhors you, and is dreadfully provoked … you are ten thousand times more abominable in His eyes than the most hateful venomous serpent is in ours."

Nothing but God's pleasure

> "There is nothing that keeps wicked men at any one moment out of hell, but the mere pleasure of God … His anger is as great toward them as to those that are actually suffering the executions of the fierceness of His wrath in hell."

A call to conversion

> "And now you have an extraordinary opportunity, a day wherein Christ has thrown the door of mercy wide open … Let every one that is out of Christ now awake and fly from the wrath to come."
