AP Short-Answer Practice

Answer a, b and c. Each part is scored on its own, so answer each one directly in 1–3 sentences with specific historical evidence.

Andrew Jackson, veto message to the Senate on the bill to recharter the Second Bank of the United States, July 10, 1832

It is to be regretted that the rich and powerful too often bend the acts of government to their selfish purposes. Distinctions in society will always exist under every just government. Equality of talents, of education, or of wealth can not be produced by human institutions. In the full enjoyment of the gifts of Heaven and the fruits of superior industry, economy, and virtue, every man is equally entitled to protection by law; but when the laws undertake to add to these natural and just advantages artificial distinctions, to grant titles, gratuities, and exclusive privileges, to make the rich richer and the potent more powerful, the humble members of society—the farmers, mechanics, and laborers—who have neither the time nor the means of securing like favors to themselves, have a right to complain of the injustice of their Government.

Text: The American Presidency Project, University of California, Santa Barbara. Excerpt.

b. Briefly explain ONE way the expansion of democracy in the 1820s contributed to the appeal of arguments like Jackson's.

c. Briefly explain ONE effect of the Bank War on the American economy OR on party politics between 1832 and 1840.

DBQ Practice · Evidence Beyond the Documents

PROMPT

Evaluate the extent to which Jacksonian democracy expanded political rights and participation in the United States from 1824 to 1840.

Your task: Read the document on this page. Write 2–3 sentences that use ONE specific piece of evidence NOT found in the document (an event, law, court case, or person) and explain how it supports an argument that responds to the prompt.

What earns the point: To earn the point, give a specific piece of historical evidence that is not in the documents (for example, Worcester v. Georgia or the Trail of Tears) and explain how it relates to your argument. Just naming a term without explaining it does not earn credit.

General Council of the Cherokee Nation, address to the people of the United States (often called the Memorial of the Cherokee Nation), July 1830, two months after Congress passed the Indian Removal Act

We wish to remain on the land of our fathers. We have a perfect and original right to claim without interruption or molestation. The treaties with us, and laws of the United States made in pursuance of treaties, guaranty our residence, and our privileges and secure us against intruders. Our only request is that these treaties may be fulfilled, and these laws executed.

But if we are compelled to leave our country, we see nothing but ruin before us. The country west of the Arkansas territory is unknown to us. From what we can learn of it, we have no prepossessions in its favor.

Text: Teaching American History (Ashbrook Center), from E. C. Tracy, Memoir of the Life of Jeremiah Evarts (Boston, 1845). Excerpt.
