>
> Our war on terror begins with Al Qaida, but it does not end there. It will not end until every terrorist group of global reach has been found, stopped, and defeated.

> Americans are asking, why do they hate us? They hate what we see right here in this Chamber, a democratically elected government. Their leaders are self-appointed. They hate our freedoms—our freedom of religion, our freedom of speech, our freedom to vote and assemble and disagree with each other.

> Every nation, in every region, now has a decision to make: Either you are with us, or you are with the terrorists. From this day forward, any nation that continues to harbor or support terrorism will be regarded by the United States as a hostile regime.

DBQ Practice · Evidence Beyond the Documents

PROMPT

Evaluate the extent to which the September 11, 2001, attacks changed U.S. foreign policy from 2001 to 2008.

Your task: Write 2–3 sentences that use ONE specific piece of historical evidence NOT found in the document on this page to support an argument that answers the prompt.

What earns the point: To earn the point, describe one specific piece of evidence that does not appear in any document (for example, a law, event, or decision) and explain how it supports your argument. Naming it is not enough, and it must be different from the evidence you use for contextualization.

George W. Bush, Address Before a Joint Session of the Congress on the State of the Union, January 29, 2002

Iraq continues to flaunt its hostility toward America and to support terror. The Iraqi regime has plotted to develop anthrax and nerve gas and nuclear weapons for over a decade.

[. . .]

States like these and their terrorist allies constitute an axis of evil, arming to threaten the peace of the world. By seeking weapons of mass destruction, these regimes pose a grave and growing danger. They could provide these arms to terrorists, giving them the means to match their hatred. They could attack our allies or attempt to blackmail the United States. In any of these cases, the price of indifference would be catastrophic.

[. . .]

We'll be deliberate; yet, time is not on our side. I will not wait on events while dangers gather. I will not stand by as peril draws closer and closer. The United States of America will not permit the world's most dangerous regimes to threaten us with the world's most destructive weapons.
