ERA 13

The New Imperialism

1867 – 1898

Why America looked outward · Hawaii · the great debate

ESSENTIAL QUESTION

Why did the United States abandon its tradition of isolation to build an overseas empire?

KEY TERMS

Mahan & sea power · Social Darwinism · the annexation of Hawaii · the Anti-Imperialist League

ALIGNED TO

CED Topic 7.2 · AMSCO Ch. 7.2

FROM AN 'APART NATION' TO A WORLD POWER

Looking Outward

Why America Looked Outward

I

Economic

Industry needed new markets and raw materials to absorb its surplus.

II

Strategic

A world power needed a world-class navy—and overseas bases to fuel it.

III

Ideological

Social Darwinism, Anglo-Saxonism, and missionary zeal cast expansion as destiny.

Sea Power & the New Navy

- Naval officer Alfred Thayer Mahan argued in The Influence of Sea Power Upon History (1890) that great nations need great navies.
- The U.S. built a modern fleet of steel battleships.
- A powerful navy required coaling stations and bases—driving expansion.

First Footholds

1867

'Seward's Folly'

The U.S. buys Alaska from Russia—mocked, then vindicated.

1878

Samoa

America gains a Pacific naval station in the South Seas.

1887

Pearl Harbor

The U.S. leases the ideal Pacific naval port in Hawaii.

The Overthrow of Hawaii

- American sugar planters dominated the islands' economy.
- In 1893, backed by U.S. troops, they overthrew Queen Liliuokalani.
- President McKinley completed the annexation of Hawaii in 1898.

SHOULD AMERICA HAVE AN EMPIRE?

The Great Debate

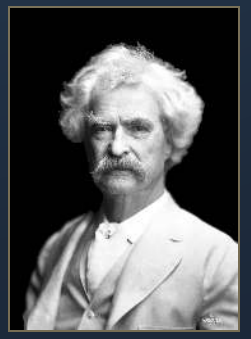

Imperialists vs. Anti-Imperialists

The Imperialists

For empire

- Empire brings markets, power, and prestige.
- A strong navy secures America's global standing.
- It is America's duty to 'civilize' and Christianize.

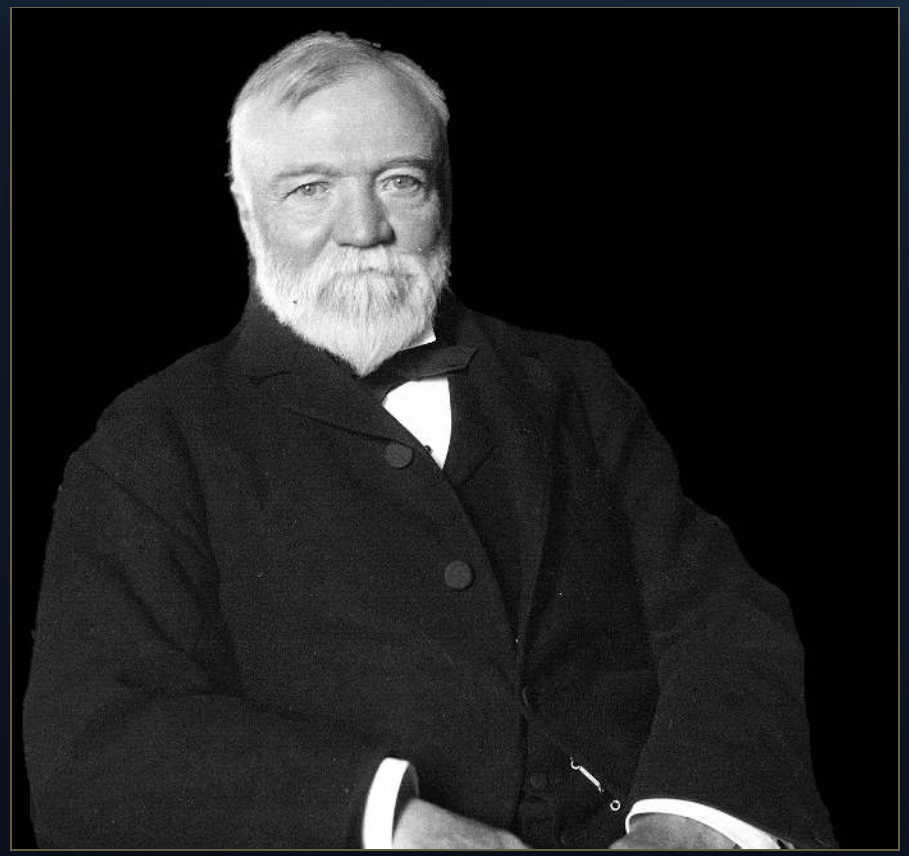

The Anti-Imperialists

Against empire

- Ruling others violates the Declaration of Independence.
- Empire betrays the principle of self-determination.
- Cheap colonial labor and goods threaten American workers.

The Anti-Imperialist League

- Founded in 1899, the Anti-Imperialist League fought U.S. expansion.
- Its unlikely coalition included Andrew Carnegie, Mark Twain, and Jane Addams.
- Though vocal, their voices were drowned out by the tide of empire.

Justifying Empire

TERM

"The White Man's Burden" (1899)

A poem by British writer Rudyard Kipling urging the United States to take control of the Philippines. It presented imperialism as a duty to "civilize" non-white peoples, a racial justification for empire.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

The New Imperialism

1. Economic, strategic, and ideological forces—markets, Mahan's navy, and Social Darwinism—pushed America outward.

2. After footholds in Alaska, Samoa, and Pearl Harbor, the U.S. overthrew and annexed Hawaii.

3. A fierce debate pitted imperialists against the Anti-Imperialist League of Twain, Carnegie, and Addams.

DISCUSS & APPLY

The New Imperialism

AP HISTORICAL REASONING PRACTICE

CAUSATION

Explain the economic, strategic, and ideological forces that drove American expansionism.

COMPARISON

Compare the arguments of the imperialists and the anti-imperialists. Whose case was stronger?

CONTINUITY & CHANGE

How did overseas imperialism both extend and break from earlier Manifest Destiny?

Up next — Lesson 32: The Spanish-American War & Empire (America becomes a world power)