Drafted at the founding convention of the People's Party in 1892, the Omaha Platform was the most ambitious reform program of the 19th century. It blamed farmers' and workers' suffering on collusion between corporations and corrupt government, and demanded a flexible currency, government ownership of railroads and telegraphs, direct election of senators, an income tax, and the secret ballot. Most of its planks looked radical in 1892 but became law during the Progressive Era and New Deal.

> Connect: The Populists' anti-monopoly rhetoric echoes Jackson's Bank War message (Class 11). Both movements attacked concentrated economic power. How are they similar? Different?

Key Passages

Preamble (Ignatius Donnelly)

> we meet in the midst of a nation brought to the verge of moral, political, and material ruin. Corruption dominates the ballot box, the legislatures, the Congress, and touches even the ermine of the bench. … The fruits of the toil of millions are boldly stolen to build up colossal fortunes for a few, unprecedented in the history of mankind … From the same prolific womb of governmental injustice, we breed the two great classes—tramps and millionaires.

Finance plank

> We demand free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1. We demand that the amount of circulating medium be speedily increased to not less than $50 per capita. We demand a graduated income tax.

Transportation plank

> Transportation being a means of exchange and a public necessity, the government should own and operate the railroads in the interest of the people.

Expression of Sentiments — political reforms

> RESOLVED, That we demand a free ballot and a fair count in all elections and pledge ourselves to secure it to every legal voter without federal intervention, through the adoption by the states of the unperverted Australian or secret ballot system. … RESOLVED, That we commend to the favorable consideration of the people and the reform press the legislative system known as the initiative and referendum. RESOLVED, That we favor a constitutional provision limiting the office of president and vice president to one term, and providing for the election of senators of the United States by a direct vote of the people.
