Lesson 11 Reading Homework

Era 5: Early Republic (1801–1817) · Focus: Jeffersonian era · Louisiana Purchase · Marshall Court

Reading due today: AMSCO 4.2, 4.3

Connect: Jefferson called his 1800 win a 'revolution.' Watch how a strict-constructionist president stretches federal power once he holds it — and how Marshall's Court builds national authority.

Learning Objective(s) for today

– 4.2 (LO B): Explain the causes and effects of policy debates in the early republic.

– 4.3 (LO C): Explain how different regional interests affected debates about the role of the federal government in the early republic.

As you read, identify each of the following:

Terms (define in 1–2 sentences)

[ ] judicial review
[ ] Lewis & Clark
[ ] Barbary Wars

People (name + role/significance in 1 sentence)

[ ] T. Jefferson
[ ] J. Marshall
[ ] A. Burr
[ ] Tecumseh

Events (year + one-sentence significance)

[ ] Revolution of 1800
[ ] Marbury (1803)
[ ] Louisiana Purchase (1803)
[ ] Embargo Act (1807)

Reading Focus Questions

Answer in 2–4 complete sentences each. Use specific evidence from the reading.

1. How did Jefferson's decision to buy Louisiana in 1803 contradict his earlier strict-constructionist view of the Constitution?

2. Explain the significance of Marbury v. Madison (1803). What power did it establish for the Supreme Court?

3. How did McCulloch v. Maryland (1819) and Gibbons v. Ogden (1824) expand federal power over the states and the economy?