TWO AMERICAS COLLIDE

A Clash of Cultures

Two Americas

Traditional America

Rural · looking back

- Small-town, Protestant, and native-born.
- Defended fundamentalist faith and old moral codes.
- Feared immigrants, cities, and rapid change.

Modern America

Urban · looking forward

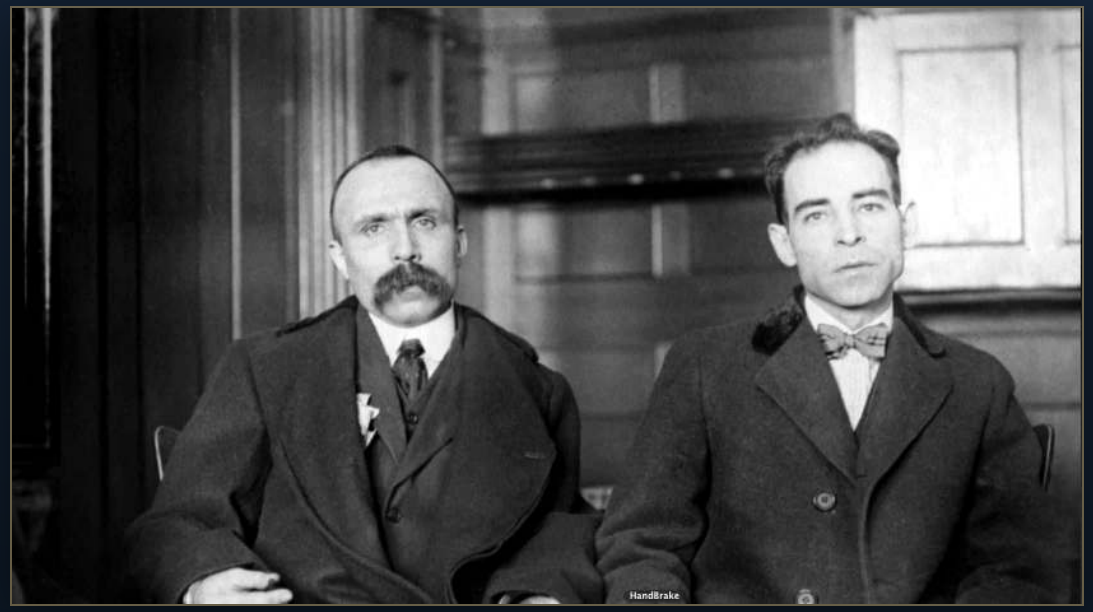

- City-dwelling, diverse, and cosmopolitan.
- Embraced modernism, science, and new freedoms.
- Home to immigrants, jazz, and the New Woman.

Nativism & Immigration Restriction

- Postwar fear and the Red Scare fed a surge of nativism.
- The Emergency Quota Act (1921) and National Origins Act (1924) slashed immigration.
- New quotas targeted Southern and Eastern Europeans and barred most Asians.

Sacco & Vanzetti

- Two Italian immigrant anarchists were convicted of murder on thin evidence.
- Their trial became a cause célèbre for the political left.
- Executed in 1927, they symbolized the era's nativism and fear of radicals.

Hooded Reaction

The Klan Revived

- A new Ku Klux Klan surged to millions of members—even outside the South.
- It targeted Black Americans, Catholics, Jews, and immigrants alike.
- Its power reflected the decade's deep anxieties about a changing nation.

SECTION

Faith vs. Science

The Scopes 'Monkey' Trial

- Teacher John Scopes was tried for teaching evolution in Tennessee.
- It pitted fundamentalism (Bryan) against modernism (Darrow).
- The 1925 trial dramatized the clash between faith and science.

Prohibition & Its Failure

- The 18th Amendment and Volstead Act banned alcohol nationwide.
- Bootlegging, speakeasies, and organized crime (Al Capone) boomed instead.
- The 'noble experiment' failed—and was repealed by the 21st Amendment in 1933.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

A Nation Divided

1. Postwar fear drove nativism, immigration quotas, the Sacco & Vanzetti case, and a revived Klan.
2. The Scopes Trial dramatized the clash between fundamentalism and modernism.
3. Prohibition fueled crime and hypocrisy—and was ultimately repealed, exposing the limits of legislating morality.
