PROSPERITY AND MODERN LIFE

The New Era

Return to Normalcy

- Republicans Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover championed pro-business government.
- 'The business of America is business.'
- Low taxes and light regulation fueled a booming economy.

The Automobile Revolution

- Henry Ford's assembly line made the Model T affordable—just $290 by 1924.
- By 1929 there was roughly one car for every five Americans.
- The auto boom drove steel, rubber, oil, roads, and suburbs.

A Consumer Culture

- A flood of new goods—radios, refrigerators, vacuums—filled American homes.
- The installment plan let families 'buy now, pay later' on credit.
- A booming advertising industry taught Americans to want more.

SECTION

A Mass Culture

The Silver Screen & the Airwaves

- Movies became the nation's favorite entertainment—Charlie Chaplin and the first 'talkie,' The Jazz Singer (1927).
- Radio broadcasting linked the country in real time.
- For the first time, Americans everywhere shared the same mass media.

The New Woman & the Flapper

- The flapper symbolized a new, more independent woman.
- Shorter skirts, bobbed hair, jazz, and dance halls shocked traditionalists.
- The 19th Amendment and city life opened new freedoms.

The Jazz Age & the Harlem Renaissance

- Jazz—led by artists like Louis Armstrong—became the sound of the decade.
- The Great Migration fed a Black cultural flowering in New York: the Harlem Renaissance.
- Writers like Langston Hughes and leaders like Marcus Garvey gave voice to Black pride.
